

CANDIDATE LARRY THOMPSON WARNS OF CIVIL WAR

By Staff

Biden Out, Newsom In; Republican Fear of Californication of America and Democrat Fear of Republican Dictatorship the Cause

LOS ANGELES—April 15, 2024 /PRNewswire/ — In his March 29, 2024 Political Manifesto, Voting In The Age of Chaos, U.S. Congressional Candidate, Larry Thompson (R), predicts the Democrat elite will persuade President Joe Biden to gracefully step aside and allow their shadow candidate, Governor Gavin Newsom, to receive the Democratic Presidential Nomination.

“The 2024 Presidential Election will be the feared Democratic Californication of America versus the assumed Republican Dictatorship of former President, Donald J. Trump,” claims Thompson.

He defines this political scenario plus “sky-high food prices, gas prices, housing prices, escalating inflation, unemployment, higher taxes, border crisis,entanyl, indoctrination of children, loss of parental rights, uncertain reproductive rights, rampant crime, the growing homeless, devaluation and government digital replacement of the U.S. dollar, plus a brazen Russia, brave Ukraine, threatening China, aggressive Iran, Anti-Semitism on the move, and sleep walking into a World War as THE AGE OF CHAOS.”

And in this Age of Chaos

where “Republicans think Democrats are foolish and naïve and Democrats believe Republicans are evil and selfish,” Thompson predicts “we are one Presidential Election away from a Civil War.

“While some pundits are already suggesting we are in a cold Civil War now, my prediction,” Thompson adds, “goes way beyond that. I foresee an all-out breakdown in communication between the political parties with a call to action or blind eye to citizens taking the disagreements to the streets with a mob mentality.

“The losers of the election will start the war; the winners will ultimately end it, as they will control the military might of the United State Government. This civil war will not be North versus South. It will basically be Blue versus Red. Democrats versus Republicans.”

These are very strong and controversial words coming from a Congressional Candidate who is unanimously endorsed by the California Republican Party. Not to mention his additional endorsements from the Los Angeles County Republican Party, The Ventura County Republican Party, The American Independent Party, The California Young Republicans, The Los Angeles County Young Republicans, The California College Republicans, Brock Pierce, Chairman of The Bitcoin Foundation, and Perianne Boring, Founder and CEO of the Chamber of Digital Commerce. www.LarryThompsonForCongress.com

When asked how he plans to defeat his 14-term incumbent opponent, Brad Sherman (D), Thompson quips. “Oh, I will definitely beat “long time sleeping at the wheel, Sherman.” I’m just glad Taylor Swift isn’t running.

“Seriously, I am finally the right congressional candidate at the right historical time for California Congress CA 32. I ask Republicans, Democrats, and the Politically Homeless to Vote For Me.

“Pray that with Common Sense and Common Civility we all find Common Ground to solve our Common Issues AND AVOID A CIVIL WAR.”

LADY GAGA IS BACK!

By Rose Quintiliano

HOLLYWOOD—Where are all the little monsters? Mother monster will be on the screen again. We are all excited that Lady Gaga is going to play a new version of Harley Quinn in “Joker: Folie à Deux” opposite Joaquin Phoenix, who actually won an Oscar for the Best Actor. The pair seemingly meet and fall in love in the Arkham Asylum before apparently escaping and forming a musical duo. The director is Todd Phillips who says it isn’t a musical, as it has been rumored, however says that the music is an essential element. Back in 2019, Phoenix won an Oscar for best actor in his performance in the Joker.

Back in 2019, the film the “Joker” made over $1 billion, so it was only a matter of time before the twisted psychological thriller centered on the green-haired super villain and Batman adversary would be getting a sequel. According to published reports, it was back in 2022, at the time that Lady Gaga was filming “House of Gucci,” that it was released that she was in early talks to join Phoenix in the “Joker: Folie à Deux.”

The film’s title is a reference to a medical term for an identical or similar mental disorder that affects two or more individuals, usually members of the same family, according to published reports. Then, on August 4 of that year, she confirmed the news, posting a musical teaser to social media that shows the silhouettes of the two actors dancing cheek to cheek. The film was co-written by director Phillips and Scott Silver, with whom he collaborated on the Joker.

Filming began in Los Angeles in December 2022, with additional filming in New Jersey and New York, in fact the scenes from the Arkham Asylum scenes were filmed at the Essex County Isolation Hospital. Most of the scenes are said to be centered around the Joker and Harley Quinn’s meeting at the asylum, making the New Jersey location pivotal. Additional scenes were filmed outside the same courthouse where Donald Trump was arraigned in New York City and the so-called Joker stairs in the Bronx.

Production reportedly wrapped on April 4, 2023. This past Valentine’s Day, 2024, Philips shared three pics from the film, which included Gaga with the widest eyes known to man alongside Phoenix in full glam, a pic of the two waltzing, and the most Gaga pic of all, the two actors with their noses pressed together. Margot Robbie, the first actress to play Harley Quinn in live-action, shared her enthusiasm about Gaga taking over from her, in an interview with ET.

The film bursts into song on October 4, 2024. It had a budget of $200 million and it’s being distributed by Warner Bros. Warner Bros. Pictures. Based on characters from DC. On the same day, the film “We Harvest,” is also being released. A young surgeon takes a job in corrupt Las Vegas. Facing personal tragedy, he’s tempted by co-workers harvesting criminal organs, believing the cause righteous before realizing his moral compromise.

The surgeon accepts a job in a innovative hospital, desperately trying to prove himself financially, he is eager to perform well. His new co-workers welcome him with open arms into their family. He learns that many of the surgeons exert vigilante justice through back-alley surgeries in which they sell the organs of criminals. Faced with this immense financial potential and moral opportunity, he begins to harvest organs for a cause he believes to be good. Only to realize his choice was actually of a greater evil. The film stars Drew Dusterhoff, who also wrote and produces the film.

The same day the film “White Bird,” is scheduled to be released. The film is directed by Marc Forster, and stars Bryce Gheisar, Helen Mirren and many more in this war and adventure film. In the film, Julian has struggled to belong ever since he was expelled from his former school for his treatment of Auggie Pullman. To transform his life, Julian’s grandmother finally reveals her own story of courage. During her youth in Nazi-occupied France, a boy shelters her from mortal danger. Together, they find first love in a stunning, magical world of their own creation, while the boy’s mother risks everything to keep her safe.

Rose’s Scoop: Demi Lovato who is currently filming a movie, in Cranford, took time out of her busy schedule to dine at Ambeli Greek Tavern on Saturday, April 13. The film “Tow,” tells the true story of Amanda Ogle, a Seattle woman who fought her way out of a tow-company scam to reclaim her life and the car that held it together after receiving a tow bill for $21,834, according to the letter. The movie stars Dominic Sessa, Rose Byrne, Oscar winners Octavia Spencer and Ariana DeBose, Demi Lovato and Simon Rex.

“24 IN 24: LAST CHEF STANDING” HAS INTRIGUING CONCEPT

By LaDale Anderson

HOLLYWOOD—This was a genius concept for the Food Network. I will admit I hate food reality competition series. There is just way too much of this on the network that was a staple for me growing up learning how to cook and be creative in the kitchen. We don’t have the cooking shows that we used to have all day on Saturdays and Sundays. Hell, you used to have repeat of cooks teaching one-on-one instruction during the week, but now it is just “Chopped” and so much more competition-driven shows.

This new series “24 in 24” sees the return of Iron Chef Michael Symon, who is hosting, alongside Esther Choi in this new adrenaline race involving 24 chefs competing for a total of 24 hours. Yes, it is NON-STOP for this extended period, which has a total of eight various skills that will be tested in three-hour intervals or shifts as the show highlights. Each shift will test a unique skill and the first thing tested was speed that witnessed the chefs cutting up onions, artichokes and avocados.

I enjoyed this concept, but beyond that it was a race to get to a protein you wanted to cook for your next challenge. So, there were 12 stations, and two chefs would be at each station, but only one would remain. Yes, with the snap of a finger 12 chefs were about to be eliminated from the competition, and right there, the series completely lost me.

How can you have a series about 24 chefs, and you get rid of half of them within the first hour of the two-hour premiere. I just found that as a cheap gimmick and it didn’t really deliver for me. For starters, a lot of the chefs on the series not many viewers, unless you’re engrained in the culinary arena, will you know. I think I knew Elizabeth Faulkner, Carlos Anthony, Marcel Vigneron and Viet Pham. Faulkner and Vigneron I know from their time on “Top Chef” and “The Next Iron Chef.” Anthony was a competitor on recent seasons of “Tournament of Champions” and Pham I recall from “Iron Chef America” battling Iron Chef Bobby Flay.

I didn’t love this twist, because it really doesn’t give the audience an opportunity to know the contestants. Like a 30 to 45 second take highlighting a few things about the chef doesn’t paint a good enough picture for me. It just doesn’t. That was not my only issue, it was the fact that we had a single chef judging the dishes from the two competitors at each station.

That was Chef Jet Tila, who recently competed on “TOC.” Here is the problem, there needs to be blind tasting for culinary competitions. You cannot do this, when you have judges who could have potential connections to chefs there can be bias, and that is the one thing I enjoyed about “TOC” it provides an equal playing field as the judges are tasting food unaware of who made what. That did not happen here and like I said 12 chefs were out, one being Faulkner which stunned me.

Then you have the next competition of this three-hour challenge, crafting your best egg dish in only 12 minutes. Yes, I’m glad they used eggs as the vehicle and 12 minutes is NOT a lot of time to craft a unique and tasty dish involving eggs. I mean, what if you are not a fan of eggs? At the end of this interval, it witnessed another chef getting the boot from the competition.

Then you have a battle after that challenge between the losing chefs where one is booted. The concept is quite intriguing, but there needs to be fixes. I was expecting 24 episodes, but the reality is that was near impossible as that is too many episodes, but slowly eliminating the 24 chefs would have been better than seeing half chopped with a snap of a finger.

I wanted to see more from this series that is doing something you don’t see often in a reality cooking competition, however, there are still some tweaks that are needed. “24 in 24: Last Chef Standing” airs Sundays at 8 p.m. on Food Network.

O.J. SIMPSON DIES OF PROSTATE CANCER

By Sharon Stice

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA—The children of O.J. Simpson announced the death of their father on the X social media platform. The former NFL and 1968 Heisman Trophy winner passed away from prostate cancer. He was 76 years old.

“On April 10th, our father, Orenthal James Simpson, succumbed to his battle with cancer. He was surrounded by his children and grandchildren. During this time of transition, his family asks that you please respect their wishes for privacy and grace.”

He was preceded in death by his parents, Jimmy Lee, who was a janitor at a bank, and Eunice Simpson, who worked as an administrator. He also was preceded in death by his two-year-old daughter, Aaren who drowned in a swimming pool in 1979.

He leaves behind his children, Arnelle Simpson, Jason Simpson, Aaren Simpson, Sydney Brooke Simpson, Justin Ryan Simpson, and many grandchildren.

Simpson won the Heisman Trophy as a senior for the USC Trojans in 1968 and then was chosen by the Buffalo Bills in the 1969 NFL/AFL draft. He played many years for the Buffalo Bills and also played for the San Francisco 49ers.

After becoming the first running back to break the 2,000-yard rushing mark, multiple news outlets hailed him as the best running back of all time. He played 11 seasons with the NFL. OJ Simpson then was named Player of the Year in 1972, 1973, 1975 and was inducted into the Football Hall of Fame in 1985.

Simpson told ESPN reporters, “I was part of the history of the game,” and then years later, “If I did nothing else in my life, I’d made my mark.”

His football fame soon became clouded by the double slayings of Simpson’s ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ron Goldman. On Sunday, June 12, 1994, police responded to two 911 calls to 875 South Bundy Drive in Brentwood, California. Brown, 35, and Goldman were found stabbed to death.

Multiple media outlets highlighted that OJ and Nicole Simpson’s children, Sydney and Justin were home at the time of the murders, suggesting that they were sitting outside eating ice cream at the time, unaware of what was happening inside of the house.

He was acquitted of the crimes of which he was accused.

OJ Simpson was ordered to pay $33.5 million in retribution to the Brown and Goldman families after losing a 1997 wrongful death lawsuit in connection to the murders of Ron Goldman and Nicole Brown Simpson.

The Heisman Trophy of OJ Simpson was in his possession until it was sold to the General Manager of Western Nevada Supply, Rick Reviglio, for $255,000.

In January 2008, Simpson was sentenced to 33 years in prison after being charged with theft, and other charges in connection with a motel room full of sports memorabilia. Simpson, who repeatedly alleged that “He only wanted what was his,” served nine years of that sentence at Lovelock Jail in Nevada, part of which he served as a janitor.

“SURVIVOR 46” RECAP: ‘HIDE ‘N SEEK’

By David Miller

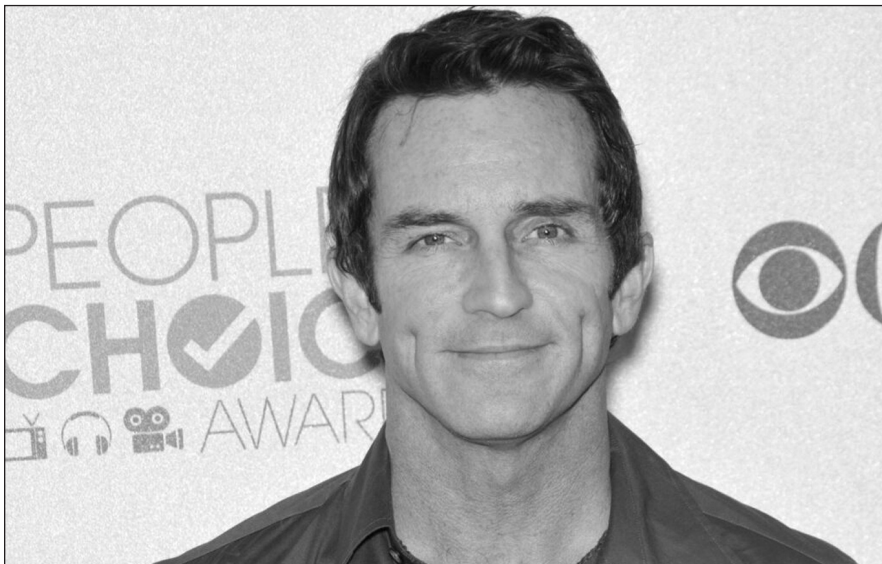

HOLLYWOOD—Talk about a frustrating episode of “Survivor.” I was excited for this week’s episode, ‘Hide ‘N Seek’ when it kicked off, but by the time the episode ended I was beyond annoyed. It just annoyed the absolute hell out of me. The tribe returned to camp with everyone from the first Tribal Council wanting to know what unfolded that led to Soda being booted from the game.

I’m sorry, but Ben is an irrelevant character. He brings nothing and does nothing for me. He is just there, and as a casting choice, I’m thinking, “What did the producers of the show see in this guy?” He is not entertaining TV, which frustrated Q because he wanted to see people play the game and he ushered in Charlie as a new member of the six, which Charlie was not fond of.

Charlie is reminding me of Spencer, but Spencer was fun to watch on TV and was strategically savvy. Charlie is an annoying know-it-all. Venus was taking credit for a move that was actually Tevin, who was telling Liz he made the move, and she was annoyed. Yes, Nami is just eating itself alive; these guys do not like each other at all.

Q is a character and we got a lot and I mean a lot of him this episode, and by the end it was not fun at all. He wanted to play hide ‘n seek as a test of who he could trust and not trust. At the end of it all he set his sights on Hunter and Ben; I mean the amount of targets Q had this episode was just unrelenting. The Tevin, Venus and Liz situation got more frustrating as the episode continued with Liz thinking ‘she’ made the move to get out Soda. What these bozos don’t understand is that they’re eating their own numbers and they were in the majority.

Liz is the same woman who said the million dollar prize didn’t matter to her, so why the hell are you actually here? Some of the casting choices this season is making me think, “Survivor” it is time for us to see some returnees, because what you guys are giving is not delivering. Tiffany was smart in her discussion with Q about Venus not being a threat, but more of an annoyance. She wanted to target Ben or Maria (right choice), but Q say no way as Maria was in the six; the same woman who didn’t seem smitten to be in the six. What does that say?

Um, get her out. So, Tiffany becomes a name that all is chatting about taking a shot at, and then Q told Maria that Tiff had an idol. This is what I HATE, when people chat about having an idol. Keep that information to yourself so that when it’s used it leaves all stunned. Do what Hunter is doing. Keeping his lips sealed so when he needs to play that idol no one will see it coming. The edit of the episode was totally making me think that Q was about to see his eviction.

The immunity challenge was the classic pole, hold on to your life. Jeff wanted to barter with rice yet again, but this time around no one was willing to sit out for food and all competed. Q was livid about the decision, and this guy is annoying my blood. When it was all said and done it was Hunter and Charlie battling for safety, but Hunter edged out the win and may have showed off a bit too much, placing a bigger target on his back.

Back at camp, Liz decided it was FINALLY time to start playing the game and wanted to target Tevin, now we all know Venus is going to try to claim this move, but this was Liz’s doing as she informed Maria, Ben, Charlie and Venus about her thoughts. I can see those five becoming tight and trying to take out Hunter, Q, Kenzie and Tiffany, as the season nears the end. I want to see that battle because Hunter and Tiff have idols, which most know about Tiffany’s, but no one is aware of what Hunter is hiding, which I think will deliver our first big blindsided of the season. Jem was blindsided, but it didn’t wow me.

So, the big battle at camp was Tevin vs Tiffany, and when Q heard about Tevin, he was not happy. Hunter started to chat and Venus being Venus annoyed a few people. I was giddy about this Tribal Council as it started, but when Q pushed wanting to be voted out I threw my hands up. I was livid, I am sick of players coming on this series only to quit. If you don’t think you can do it, then don’t come on. It annoyed the hell out of me. Was it strategy? I don’t know and I truly don’t think so, so Q caused a mess at TC, where the whispering and all that chaotic crap that is not fun to watch as we cannot hear it all just stifled the episode.

Tiff learned that Q spilled her idol and for a slight second I thought everyone was voting Q out, but that would be too easy, and it was Tevin who was blindsided despite Venus getting two votes. As it appears, Venus is definitely not winning this game, she is getting the dodo edit in my opinion.

So next week it’s three vs three vs three and as I noted earlier, I can see Maria, Charlie, Venus, Ben and Liz as a five against Tiff, Q, Kenzie and Hunter, with Q being on the outs. So, I have an idea who might be going home next if they don’t win immunity and I don’t want predictability in my “Survivor” until next Wednesday.
