These critical areas where safety is a priority, some companies are opting for a two-stage cleaning system: first to clean, then disinfect. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) refers to cleaning as the removal of germs, dirt, and impurities from surfaces. Cleaning does not kill germs, but by removing them, it lowers their numbers and the risk of spreading infection. Disinfecting refers to using chemicals to kill germs on surfaces. This does not necessarily clean germs or remove them, but by killing germs on a surface after cleaning, it can further lower the risk of spreading infection.
